

Dashed green outline: half-maximum of the 532 nm excitation spot. The new tip concentrates its collection onto exactly that spot, which is what turns a small etendue into a large photon count. Collection is held to the escape-cone ceiling at every wavelength.